DIFFERENCE IN PAINTING

The fact should be made clear to property owners that there is all the difference in the world in painting. A good painter is worth more than a poor one because he uses suitable paint and puts it on right. The Elko Paint & Wall Paper Co. F. A. George prop., are now ready to quote prices on all kinds of painting, taping, paper hanging, grain ing and sign work and they guarantee their work.

A splendid line of fall Wall paper just received. Phone 131

Punished for Yawning.

When Henry Brown of Brockton, Mass., awoke the other day he yawned, tried to close his mouth and could not. He had fractured his jaw. With his mouth wide open he walked more than a mile to a physician's office and had the fracture reduced. As he was leaving the office his jaws unlocked again. Finally he was placed under ether and the jaw permanently fixed.

HAVE NOT ENOUGH TO DO

People Like the Inhabitants of Pitcairn Island Really Deserve the Sympathy of Others.

While most people are sorry for those who have too much to do, for my part I reserve my sympathy for those who have too little to do. They seem to me to have scarcely a fair chance in the world. Their natures are not properly taxed and tested, trained and developed. They are sure not to grow up to be among those who are great, wise, good and famous in the world. Now they are glad that they are free from the ordinary cares and activities of life. In the future they will be sorry. Indeed, it may help to kill them.

A traveler, who visited the Pitcairn Islanders in their lonely Pacific home, where they led a life of absolute idleness, found some of them dying of old age when only 50 or 60 years of age—a time of life when those who lead a busy existence are in their prime. They had too little to do. The rough fibre of life, for its due adjustment, needs a certain amount of work and worry.

Two strangers met one day at a country village, where both had come in search of rest. One was a newspaper man, the other a physician. In the morning, the newspaper man lay lazily on the grass, picking buttercups and daisies and looking at the blue sky. He did this for an hour, while the physician watched him. Medical men have a trick of watching their fellow-creatures. We are open books for them to read.

"You seem, sir," said the physician, "to be rather fond of lying on the grass and picking daisies."

"I have a passion for it," was the answer. "I should like to spend my life lying here, picking daisies."

"And yet," was the rejoinder. "I have an idea that you are a man who leads a pretty active life—that you take a good deal of interest in other matters besides the picking of daisies."

"Yes, I work a great deal more than I like, and I should be glad to quit and would choose to rest here on my back forever, with nothing in the world to do."

"Do you know, sir, what would be the result of that?"

"Well, what would it be?"

"It would probably be an attack of paralysis. To stop work would probably end your existence."

Often people have too little to do in early life. They have seasons of much holiday and glorious leisure. Then comes the long stretch of life, with hard work; and they too late regret, now when they have too much to do, that they did not take advantage of the time when they had too little to do.

Decent Housing as a Foundation.
We have had occasion heretofore to emphasize the need and value of the work which the Association of Commerce has undertaken with reference to the question of the housing of the poorer elements of the population—the unskilled workmen, the new arrivals, the employees of the lowest industries. It is with much gratification that we note substantial progress in this direction. A report on actual housing conditions, which are shocking and alarming, has just been submitted to the association, and a campaign of education and construction has been decided on. Experts from other cities will be consulted, model tenements will be erected, existing ordinances as to sanitation and health will be better enforced, and additional legislation will be sought to prevent overcrowding of lots, houses and flats.—Chicago Record-Herald

HITS MODERN WOMAN

SHE DOESN'T KNOW MEANING OF ROMANTIC LOVE.

So Asserts Alexander Harvey, Who Says He Almost Thinks the Women of Today Have All Gone Crazy.

How will the modern woman movement affect romantic love?

Alexander Harvey, editor and author, answers the question by declaring the woman who walks forward treads upon divine law and the heart of man in her progress. He said:

"The modern woman movement is really the new immorality."

"True love does not come between a man and a woman until after marriage and the birth of a child."

"Women never have understood and never will understand the laws of either love or morality."

"The theory of conscious eugenics, which is one of the by-laws of the modern woman movement, is the supreme obscenity of today."

"Just what do you mean in your characterization of the modern woman movement?" I asked.

"Just what does the modern woman mean by the movement?" queried Mr. Harvey in turn. "Sometimes I think the woman of today have all gone crazy. When you ask them what they want when they cry for personal equality and the vote, they do not know themselves."

"But I will tell you what they want. I will tell you at what the modern woman movement is aimed. It is aimed at the sacredness of the marriage relation. It upholds divorce, and that supreme obscenity of the present day which women call conscious eugenics. Women have never understood true morality, and they never will. The divine laws were made by God, the father and the man, for men. And when you say a woman cannot understand morality, it follows logically that she cannot understand love."

The old-fashioned woman, the womanly woman, whose heart and brain were molded by the man she loved, was at least a source of comfort to her husband. He did grow to love her. But let me assure you that the modern woman, with her talk of mental and economic equality, will never learn the real meaning of romantic love.—Ethel Floyd Patterson in the New York World.

Decline of the Boatswain.

The rumored disestablishment of boatswains, as an anachronism dating from the days of sail, is no more likely to come to pass than the extermination of the carpenters as a survival of the wooden age. But the former class have little enough share in the general improvement of service conditions. What was said in Truth the other day as to the gunners getting all the plums out of the pudding is particularly borne out by one grievance under which the boatswains labor. In 1891 there were nearly 400 boatswains and a like number of gunners. The respective proportion of chiefs and warrants were about equal. Today there are 262, including 12 lieutenants and 27 warrants; while there are 890 gunners, including 26 lieutenants and 78 warrants. The expansion of the latter branch is a natural and necessary corollary of the growth of the fleet, but it is equally true that the shrinkage of the former class is unnatural and unnecessary.—London Truth.

On the Death of Franklin.

Franklin is dead! Restored to the bosom of the Divinity is that genius which gave freedom to America, and rayed forth torrents of light upon Europe. The sage whom two worlds claim—the man whom the history of empires and the history of science alike contend for—occupied, it cannot be denied, a lofty rank among his species. Long enough have political cabalists signalized the death of those who were great in their funeral eulogies only. Long enough has the etiquette of courts prescribed hypocritical mournings. For their benefactors only should nations assume the emblem of grief; and the representatives of nations should commend only the heroes of humanity to public veneration.—Comte De Mirabeau.

TRAGEDY OF TOMATO VINE

Practical Person Makes Discovery After Neighbors Had Given Voice to Their Wonderment.

Now doth the amateur agriculturist flourish and wax proud at his Luther Burbank achievements, says the Brooklyn Eagle. One such nursed a lone tomato plant from delicate and sickly infancy to robust maturity. With all a mother's tender care he ministered to that plant. He watered it, brushed the dust off it, pleaded with it, encouraging it to better things. Then one day a member of the family rushed into the house with glad tidings. There was a real tomato on the vine.

What an assemblage there was about that plant! The block was depopulated temporarily. Amateur agriculturists climbed on each other's necks to view the wonder. The head of the house inspected it through a magnifying glass. His spouse clasped her hands and exclaimed: "At last we shall have our own salad from our own vine." Even the watchman from a row of empty houses nearby was called to look, and he remarked solemnly that he "never saw such a large tomato on such a small vine."

Then came along one of those horribly practical persons, who said it couldn't be, and had to have a closer look. He spied it all by his discovery that the tomato had been tied on with a string, and if you want to know who tied it on ask the woman who lives next door.

HIS WAS A NATURAL ERROR

Suspect Thought the Enlargement of Finger Print Was Impression of His Corduroy Pants.

Mayor Gaynor was talking to a New York reporter about the famous robbery case wherein a criminal had been convicted by means of the Bertillon system of finger prints alone.

"It reminds me," said the mayor, "of a story about a parson. This parson had a fine orchard, and one summer, just when the Bertillon system first came out, the orchard was robbed. The only clue left was the robber's finger print on an over-ripe peach. The parson had a photographic enlargement of the finger print made. Then, with this enlargement under his arm, he accosted in the main street the man whom he suspected of the theft."

"Pete," he said, "somebody robbed my orchard last night."

"Pete took his pipe from his mouth. He gulped nervously. 'Is that so, sir?' he said."

"Yes, Pete, that's so," said the parson; "but the thief left his mark behind, and I shall easily trace him. Do you see this, Pete?" And the preacher held before the man's eyes the huge enlargement of the finger print.

Pete, beholding the photograph, made a gesture of despair. "I see there hasn't no use denyin' 'ot I done," he said. "Ye got the bulge on me, parson. I pinched yer fruit, and no mistake. But I certainly would like to know, though, where ye got that there impression of my corduroy pants!"

SCOTCH AND IRISH DREAM

Head Clerk Tells of His Vision of the Piper and the Street Gang Foreman.

"There is only one thing that I envy Andrew Carnegie for," said the head clerk, "and that is the fact that he is able to hire an organist to wake him up every morning to the sound of music. I read that in a paper one day and I became so enamored of the idea that I hired an Italian to come around and grind his street piano every morning under my window. But the other lodgers complained so violently that I had to give it up."

"But that's not what I started to tell about. I had a queer dream last night. I dreamed I was Carnegie and that I had just been awakened out of a refreshing sleep by my Scotch piper, who was pacing up and down the wall around my castle at Ninety-first street and Fifth avenue. The Scotchman was pouring his whole soul into 'The Wearing of the Green'—anything is possible in a dream, you know—when up came a snail boy, who began to suck a lemon right where the piper could see him. The Scotchman struggled bravely for a moment, his features contorted in agony, and then the tune died away into a mournful shriek. Whereupon the Irish foreman of a gang working out in the street produced a shotgun from somewhere and indignantly shot the piper off the wall. Yes, I woke up then."

Exercise.

"What you want to do," said the physician, "is to take more exercise." "In that case I think I'll go fishing." "No. What you want is physical exercise. Not exercise of the imagination."
